The screenshot shows the Sublime Text editor interface with three open files: `_blog.scss`, `_base.scss`, and `_banner.scss`. The code in the `_base.scss` file includes:

```
59     width: 100%;
60     max-width: 24em;
61     &:last-child {
62         margin-bottom: 0;
63     }
64 }
65 }
66 }
67 @include breakpoint() {
68     h1 {
69         font-size: 3.5em;
70     }
71     .item {
72         @include display-flex();
73         height: 78vh;
74     }
75     .thumb {
76         @include span(1 of 2);
77         &:after {
78             display: none;
79             content: '';
80         }
81     }
82     .banner-content {
83         position: static;
84         color: $font-color;
85         padding-right: 2em;
86         @include span(1 of 2 last);
87         @include display-flex();
88         @include flex-direction(column);
89         @include justify-content(center);
90     }
91 }
```

On the right side of the editor, there is a promotional banner for Sublime Text. It features the Sublime Text logo (a stylized 'S' in orange and yellow) and the text:
